

Quality Week: Let's discuss testing and control!

As part of the World Quality Week, which has been held since November 11, special attention is paid to issues related to testing and quality control of products. This is especially important for ensuring the safety and quality of food products, which directly affects the health of consumers and the reputation of manufacturers. In the context of modern requirements and standards, such as TR CU 015/2011 "On grain safety", quality control is becoming an integral part of the production process.

Deputy Head of the Testing Department of the Polotsk Center Zhanna Yarmolik discussed with Vladimir Pashukevich, Director of the Seltsy enterprise, issues of testing grain, in particular, buckwheat intended for food purposes. The meeting considered the procedure for issuing test reports, which ensures that products comply with modern safety standards. New testing methods and the need to implement them to improve the quality of grain crops were also discussed.

An important aspect of the discussion was the quality of salted fish products produced at the Braslavryba enterprise. Zhanna Yarmolik noted the importance of strict quality control at all stages of production, from raw materials to the finished product. Georgy Tetera presented current quality indicators and shared plans for improving production processes. It is important that the products not only comply with internal standards, but also meet consumer requirements!

Head of the Testing Department Natalia Glebova met with a representative of the Ardai company to discuss issues of radiation control of wild mushrooms and berries exported to the countries of the European Union. The meeting reviewed the current results of radiation control and plans for further improvement of product quality to comply with international standards.

These meetings emphasize the importance of interaction between standardization centers and manufacturers in the field of quality control and product safety. Guaranteeing high product quality is the key to consumer confidence and successful business!