

STB ISO 37001-2020 “Anti-bribery management systems. Requirements and application guide»

In our country, the National Security Concept recognizes corruption as one of the threats to national security and directs all state bodies to effectively counteract this phenomenon. It reduces the economic opportunities of the state and undermines the principle of social justice, contributes to the growth of tension in society.”

Bribery and corruption pose a serious threat to all types of businesses worldwide and undermine public trust in responsible organizations. As a result, worldwide demands for detection of abuse and compliance with anti-bribery laws are growing.

Implementation in the Republic of Belarus of the state standard STB ISO 37001-2020 “Anti-bribery management systems. Requirements and Application Guidance” helps organizations reduce the risk of bribery in their own processes and throughout their global value chains. Helps provide a manageable business framework to prevent, identify and address bribery risks that can potentially reduce corporate costs associated with bribery misconduct.

The requirements of STB ISO 37001-2020 are general and are intended to apply to all organizations regardless of the type, size and nature of activities, and the anti-bribery management system can be autonomous or integrated into the overall management system of the organization.

The benefits of implementing STB ISO 37001-2020 for an enterprise will be: - transparency of the organization's activities, reduction of bribes through a mechanism for assessing and combating bribery and corruption; increasing confidence and preventing financial losses.
